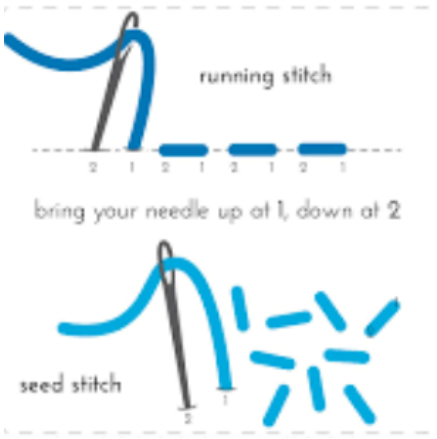
Thread your needle
Cut a piece of embroidery thread (it comes with 6 strands), separate out 2 strands, thread your needle, and tie a knot at the end.

Start from the back
Push the needle up through the fabric from the back so the knot gets caught underneath.

Running and Seed Stitch

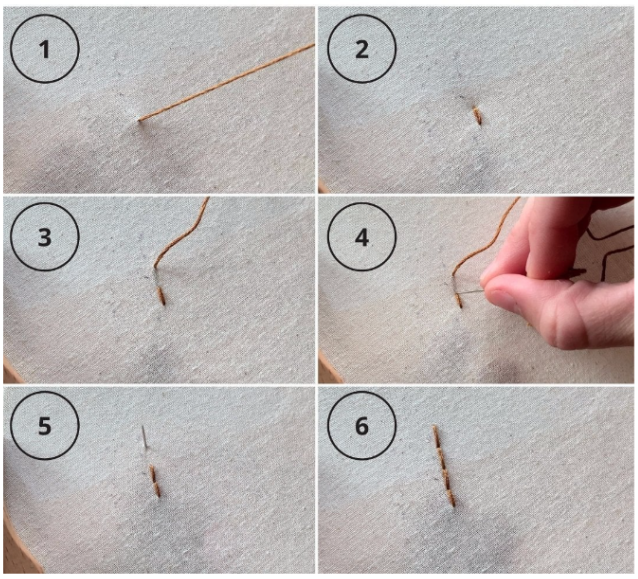


Make your first stitch
Push the needle back down through the fabric a short distance away (about 0.5–1 cm). This creates your first small stitch.

Repeat the motion
Bring the needle back up again a little ahead of where it went down. Then go down again. You're basically going up, down, up, down in a straight line. Or in different directions

Tip
Go slow at first—it gets easier quickly.

Backstitch



Make your first stitch
Push the needle down a short distance ahead (like a running stitch).

Come up ahead
Bring the needle back up a little further along your line.

Stitch backward
Now push the needle back down into the end of the previous stitch. (This is what makes it a "back" stitch!)

Repeat
Come up ahead again, then go back into the end of the last stitch. Keep repeating to make a solid line.

Tip
Think of it like this: Go forward, then step back into the last hole.

Finish off
When you're done, push the needle to the back, loop it behind a few stitches, then tie a knot to secure the thread.
